Study links Pfizer's COVID-19 vaccine to VAIDS in children

According to a study published in the peer-reviewed journal Frontiers, children vaccinated with Pfizer's Wuhan coronavirus (COVID-19) vaccine eventually developed weakened immune systems and diminished immune responses months after vaccination.

The study was titled "BNT162b2 COVID-19 vaccination in children alters cytokine responses to heterologous pathogens and Toll-like receptor agonists."

For the study, researchers from Australia tested the cytokine responses of 29 children aged five to 11 before their first dose of Pfizer BioNTech's vaccine and 28 days after their second dose.

Upon examining data from the young volunteers, the researchers found that "vaccination in children alters cytokine responses to heterologous stimulants, particularly one month after vaccination."

However, the research team did not elaborate on the implications of their findings, particularly the fact that all of the children essentially developed vaccine-acquired immune deficit syndrome (VAIDS) that left them susceptible to viruses, bacteria and other pathogens.

The findings revealed that the decrease in immune response was noticeable in data after 28 days while the decreased immune response to viruses lasted for at least six months. (Related: VAERS data: 72% of all reported VACCINE DEATHS are attributed to COVID-19 injections.)

Study findings confirm what many experts have been warning the public about

Igor Chudov, a researcher who wasn't involved in the study, said the findings are a milestone for the mainstream scientific community because they indirectly admit what independent physicians and scientists have been reporting for a long time.

The study provides scientific confirmation that vaccination against COVID-19 results in a significant decrease in immunity to heterologous pathogens, such as viruses, bacteria and fungi.

This decreased immunity to other pathogens is what people colloquially refer to as VAIDS. This is alarming because a reduced immune response to common bacteria that is encountered daily can cause great harm to children and may even result in life-threatening diseases.

Chudov explained that reduced responses to gram-positive bacteria such as Staphylococcus aureus are very serious because the illness is "difficult to treat and causes untold harm." He added that it would have been better if the data had been released before coronavirus vaccines were approved and disseminated to millions of people by Big Pharma despite the many side effects and diseases linked to vaccination.

In an ideal world, cautious and principled doctors, scientists and public health authorities would thoroughly examine the side effects of COVID-19 vaccines before vaccinating tens of millions of children and billions of adults. If these experts properly looked into the potential harm that may be caused by the vaccines before enforcing mandatory vaccinations, many lives could have been saved.

However, because of the rush to "vaccinate the world" with vaccines that are unnecessary and ineffective, the immune responses of millions of children and potentially all other vaccinated people have already been compromised, lamented Chudov.

Alex Berenson, a vaccine researcher, said the study findings are crucial. He also consulted immunologists who agreed that the study's conclusions had very disturbing implications.

Berenson also criticized the study authors because he considered it cowardly to downplay the significance of their findings.

One physician also voiced his worries that mRNA vaccination may cause "a short-term vulnerability to bacterial and viral infection in children" along with a "long-term immune deficiency." He added that he was worried public health authorities would choose to ignore the paper.

After all, the researchers themselves sidestepped their own findings and they bluntly stated that "the mRNA shot caused a persistent immune deficiency in children."

The worrying findings come as President Joe Biden declared that he was seeking congressional funding to develop a new COVID-19 vaccine. Once again, the new vaccine will be recommended to U.S. citizens regardless of previous vaccine status.

Somehow, the masses still believe that masks work and the bioweapon shot is a safe and effective vaccine. Unbelievable, but true.
